Consumer Advocates Respond to Governor Newsom's Veto on Bills to Protect Aging Californians from Abuse, Financial Scams

"We are gravely disappointed to see Governor Newsom's veto on both of these important bills.

"Until banks and financial institutions are required to implement common-sense measures that protect seniors from being robbed by scammers – our loved ones will continue to lose their life savings to predators. And as long as our laws do not clearly bar the practice of destroying evidence, senior care facilities will continue to escape accountability for the harm and abuse they've caused.

"Protecting our aging population is not complicated, and ought to be prioritized over the interests of the powerful entities who profit even when seniors suffer abuse. Consumer Attorneys of California will continue to lead this fight in the legislature, and urge the Governor to join us in making sure seniors can enjoy their golden years with dignity."
